This mid-terrace house forms part of a development built in 2006 around an open green space with games and play areas. Exeter city centre can be reached in just over 20 minutes on foot, or by local buses every 15 minutes during the day from the Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital nearby.

Easily accessible by car, bus or train are the south Devon coastal towns of Sidmouth, Budleigh Salterton, Torquay, Exmouth, Dawlish, Teignmouth and slightly further on, Plymouth with its National Marine Aquarium and naval dockyard. Exeter has a wealth of tourist attractions of its own, as well as making an ideal base from which to explore the moors, beautiful countryside and great beaches of the South West.

A variety of opportunities for walking and cycling exist within easy reach of the house, while in the unlikely event that the weather is doubtful outdoors, there are various options for home entertainment, including radio, Freeview and 'catch-up' TV and house-swappers are welcome to make use of any board games and browse our books. (Interior photos below.)

There is a small enclosed garden, garage and private parking space, reached from the rear courtyard as well as the 'Green' at the front.

St Leonard's C. of E. church is a large evangelical congregation in the Exeter deanery. Average Sunday attendance at 9.15 and 11.00 in the morning and 6.30 in the evening services is about 500. There are a good number of midweek activities and meetings for all age groups. For more information visit www.stleonards.church

2018-from Katie in Lancs (ref 1187)

We had an excellent experience in every way, staying at the King's beautiful home in Exeter. The house was very clean and comfortable with lots of space and a lovely garden. We ate the grapes and tomatoes. Communication was very good. Great location. In fact, we are hoping to go again.
