The village of Hatfield is near the smallish town of Doncaster in South Yorkshire. Although only eight miles from the heart of this industrial town, there is an underlying 'village feel' to the area. The surrounding countryside is flat, while some interesting peat moors begin just 4 miles away at Thorne Waste. Houses in Hatfield date from the late 1700's to the present day, giving an interesting range of architecture.

It is a very peaceful location in spite of the nearby motorway links, as traffic can't be heard from the house. There is a wealth of great places to visit in this area, which provide a range of both town and country pursuits. See websites below.

This detached bungalow was built in the late 1950's and is within a ten minute walk of shops, eating places and the church mentioned later.

The garden is fenced, and tying up the gate would make it enclosed! It is laid to lawn with flower borders and shrubs, & house swappers /sitters are welcome to help themselves to any fruit or vegetables that may be ready for picking during their stay. They are even invited to do a bit of weeding if they wish, and in the summer there are plants to water, not daily, but as necessary. Small children will be pleased to discover the little tree house, enjoyed by the visiting grandchildren!

St Lawrence is the Anglican Church in Hatfield. It has a morning congregation of about 60 people with a more intimate 25-30 for the evening service. Their website is a work-in-progress, so info to follow, but there is a good variety of services & house-swappers will receive a warm welcome! Most of the services tend to be fairly traditional, with family and some other services having a more contemporary style of worship. Mid week events include fellowship groups for prayer and bible study, and a communion service. There are also pram services.

This is a lovely home and large garden. There are some responsibilities involved in watering plants and feeding chickens but these are well explained and the reward is eggs galore! Although the immediate surrounding area is not really a holiday destination, we found that fairly easy motorway access to the Yorkshire Wolds, & other places, made it a very enjoyable holiday destination for us.
