Radevormwald is in a lovely rural location about an hour's drive from Düsseldorf in the north, & Cologne to the south/west. (See area websites below) Radevormwald itself is a very old & attractive town with good facilities and a lovely town square with cafés etc.

The couple live in the small village of nearby Hahnenberg. Their nearest shop is 2km, nearest eating place is 5km & their church is 15km.

The locality is made up of farming communities mostly with cattle & horses; the landscape offers lovely countryside with rolling hills & forests. This is a beautiful area to visit, and while there is some public transport, a car is strongly recommended. Their nearest major town is Wuppertal, 20k, with its Opera House & many other amenities. There is one bike available.

This detached house, built on a slope, is split into 2 flats & the couple live on the upper floor which is actually street level! (above right) Other family members live on the lower level. It was built about 30 years ago. They share the garden, but there is also a large balcony with garden furniture, and a gas barbecue, and this is a nice place to sit & enjoy the sunshine! (Balcony visible on photo above left & view from balcony left. More photos below)

Kirchengemeinde Remlingrade is a Lutheran congregation and all services are in German! However house swappers will be made very welcome & several people speak some English. This is a great choice for anyone learning the German language. About 30 people attend the morning service which tends to be fairly traditional. <http://www.ekir.de/remlingrade>

If you would prefer an English speaking church see the two options below:- one in Dusseldorf & the other near Cologne. <http://www.christchurchanglican.de/>
