Alsfeld is a small market town in the Hesse region, the heart of Germany. The nearest cities are Giessen, Frankfurt, Marburg, Fulda, Bad Hersfeld. This beautiful medieval town centre has attractive timber framed houses. It has been selected by the European Council as a European Model town. There is a great selection of restaurants, shops, a cinema and a communal swimming centre as well as other amenities.

The area around the town is rural with beautiful landscapes for hiking and biking. Two adult bikes are available to use. They do not plan to swap cars, but transport isn't difficult here, although a car is best. Alsfeld has a railway station with good connections to surrounding towns & cities. It is not far from the motorway.

This detached house was built in 1950, and renovated in 2017. The partially enclosed garden is behind the house, with a lawn and two terraces. Children are welcome to play on the lawn. (More photos below)

Stadtmission Alsfeld, Chrischona Gemeinschaftsverband is an entirely German-speaking evangelical church. However the couple have English speaking friends who can answer questions about the house and the area.

They meet on Sunday mornings where there is a good mix of traditional and contemporary worship. This is a family church catering for all age groups, and house-swappers would be made very welcome!
