This home is situated in the village of Pedro Munoz in the province of Ciudad Real. It is approximately 1¼ hours from Madrid, and Toledo, and 2½ hours from Valencia.

This may not be a coastal area of Spain, but it has as much to offer, and more! Take a look at the website below to learn about the many and varied activities on offer at the nearby 17 lagoons of 'Lagunas de Ruidera', which also offer splendid landscapes, caves & waterfalls and magnificent sunsets. Available are a variety of watersports including canoeing, diving, cycling, swimming, climbing, fishing...down to the pure relaxation of sunbathing on the lagoons' beaches, paddling by the clear water's edge or enjoying a gentle ride on a pedalo! www.lagunasderuidera.net

Pedro Muñoz is located in La Mancha, an elevated plateau (610 m or 2000 ft.) of central Spain, south of Madrid, stretching between the Montes (mountains) de Toledo and the western spurs of the Cerros (hills) de Cuenca, and bounded on the south by the Sierra Morena and on the north by the La Alcarria region. It includes portions of the modern provinces of Cuenca, Toledo, and Albacete, and most of the Ciudad Real province.

Pedro Muñoz is located near Campo Criptana, el Toboso and Mota del Cuervo, villages well described in Don Quixote de La Mancha. Miguel de Cervantes gave international fame to this land and its windmills when he wrote his novel

The home is a semi-detached 3 storey house, built in 1990. (Photos below) There is a small front garden & a larger private back garden, 34m², with table & chairs for eating al fresco! There are some bicycles which house-swappers are welcome to use.

The family attend the Catholic Church San Pedro Apostol, but there are evangelical churches in the village as well as nearby villages. Services are in Spanish, but house-swappers will be given a warm welcome, and a helping hand! And worship is a common language anyway! www.iglesiadeciudadreal.es

Sport and Leisure	The village itself has tennis/paddle courts, football, swimming pool & greenways for cycling.
