“Beautifully situated on the Drac and Isere Rivers and surrounded by mountains, Grenoble, the self-styled capital of the Alps, is a lively modern town.”

Discovering the town and surrounding region takes you from one surprise to another, from unusual places to historic sites, from casual strolls to unexpected finds”

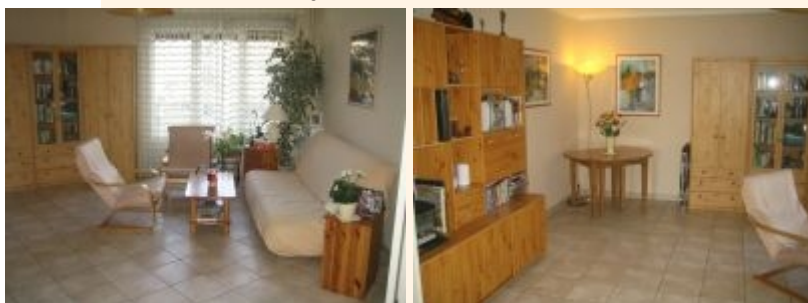

This is a wonderful area to explore. See websites below.

Grenoble itself is the flattest town in France, making walking and cycling really easy and interesting, while the mountain backdrop offers challenging hikes and mountain biking. Mountain bikes can be hired for this purpose.

The family have road bikes which house swappers are welcome to use, and British cyclists will be delighted to know that there are marked bike lanes throughout the town and in the country!

Although the 'Med' is a 3 hour drive, there are nearby lakes which are great for swimming or for a range of watersports.

Other interesting and attractive towns in the locality are Lyon and Annecy and a little further is the majestic Mont-Blanc.

This early 1960's 4 bedroomed apartment is in a great central location in Grenoble, and there is a lift. They do not have a TV, but there are many toys, books and games. (See more photos below) They have their own garage, and while they do not have a garden, there is a lovely large park just 100 metres away. This includes a good play area for children with playground equipment. The location is good for all local amenities and there is an excellent public transport system.

Their church, Eglise du plein Evangile, (Full Gospel Church), is an evangelical and charismatic church and all services are in French. But there are people who speak in English and will welcome house-swappers to share in the worship, which after all, is universal! It is a thriving church with 4 pastors and one of these speaks English.

400 people attend the morning service which is contemporary in style.

There is also an English speaking Anglican Church in Grenoble.
